Nancy Buchanan

Nancy Buchanan has been a vital member of the Southern California art community for many years. Politically outspoken against nuclear war and American international policies, she began performing in the 1970s during the first wave of Los Angeles performers. Many of her performances, installations, videos and static image/text works use an element of “serious play” to focus on social issues. Buchanan played a central role in the feminist art movement in Los Angeles in the 1970s, and was a founding member of the feminist art collective Double X.
