

Nobel Laureate Nadia Murad: Films for Peace and Justice

March 12, 2024

7:00 pm

Folino Theater,
Marion Knott Studios

283 N. Cypress St. Orange, 92866

Undergraduate students from Dodge College of Film and Media Arts and Wilkinson College of Arts, Humanities, and Social Sciences worked with 2018 Nobel Peace Prize Laureate Nadia Murad to create films to address issues related to her work on behalf of victims of genocide and sexual assault around the globe.

Dr. Lisa Leitz and Christine Fugate, faculty from Peace Studies and Documentary Studies respectively, led these students in the spring 2023 course HUM/FTV 317 Unsung Stories and New Expressions: Making Conflict-Related Sexual Violence Visible. This event showcases the best films made in cross-disciplinary student groups and supported by professionals in the documentary filmmaking. They will be utilized to help train international workers for work in the field, raise issues with governments and international organizations, and bring attention to Nadia's work.

Co-sponsors:

Department of Peace and Justice Studies
Jill Sinclair Fund