Ryan Gattis is a writer, curator, and creative writing professor at Chapman University. He holds an M.A. in Fiction Writing from the University of East Anglia in Norwich, England, and is the author of novels Roo Kickkick & the Big Bad Blimp and Kung Fu High School. The latter was acquired by The Weinstein Company and chosen as a “Discover Selection” by Barnes & Noble. He wrote and curated the story-driven art show “The Art of Kung Fu: Myths and Legends” and works closely with art collective UGLAR (uglarworks.com) as Narrative Director on various public art projects. Raised in Colorado, he lives in Downtown Los Angeles, where his latest novella is set. The Big Drop: Homecoming, a crime drama, was published by Black Hill Press in December 2012.