Justine Van Meter is an Assistant Professor of English. Her research and teaching specializations include modern/contemporary Irish Literature, Postcolonial Theory and Literature, and Cultural Theory in general. She teaches a variety of courses including World Literature, Postcolonial Literature and Theory, Cultural Theory: Fairy Tales, Freshman Foundations, and Writing About Diverse Cultures. She is currently revising her book-length project, entitled Writing the Dying and the Dead: Irishness, Jewishness, and Gender, for publication. She earned her Ph.D. at Vanderbilt University.