Appreciation Week is This Week!
Appreciation Week is an opportunity for the law school community to share its appreciation, gratitude, and thanks with our fellow community members. There will be special events held throughout the week including an opportunity for students, faculty, and staff to take a minute and write a note to someone else in the law school thanking them for lending you class notes when you were sick last month, working with you on a class project, being friendly, or just a note to say thank you for being you. Notes will be available in the lobby starting Monday, March 31 and will be available all week. Simply write your note and drop it in the box. Notes mean much more when you sign your name to them. All the notes will be delivered on Friday, April 4. Look for your notes in your student folders (in the old mailbox room).

Student Organization Officer Elections
All student organizations must elect officers for the coming academic year prior to the end of this semester. This includes journals and competition boards. Once your new officers have been selected, please forward their names and email addresses to x Jones at x@chapman.edu. Thanks for your anticipated cooperation.
