Survivor: Richard Billauer

When listening to Richard Billauer’s testimony, one topic seemed to be constant: Time. Even now, people around the world, including myself, ask the same question: “When will things be normal again?” And we continue to measure out our lives, looking at our watches and our phones, and counting down the minutes. I wanted to capture two aspects: Time, and the Watches his father gave him before leaving Warsaw. He had to face the decision of keeping something very dear to him versus trading it for food, and I wanted to show that moment: a decision that no doubt changed his life.
