

Ethnic Studies Lecture Series

Friday, March 4th at 12:30 PM in the
Cross-Cultural Center

Laura Ng is a historical archaeologist and Visiting Assistant Professor of Anthropology at Grinnell College in Iowa. Her research focuses on the archaeology of late nineteenth and early twentieth century transnational Asian American communities. She has participated in the excavation of several World War II Japanese American incarceration camps and her recent research focuses on historic Chinatowns and the home villages where Chinese migrants to the U.S. came from. She received a B.A. in Anthropology from UC San Diego, M.A. in Historical Archaeology from the University of Massachusetts Boston, and Ph.D. in Anthropology from Stanford University.

Laura Ng

The Archaeology of Chinese Migration and Transnationalism